Hi all,

I hope you are all enjoying this Wednesday!

Here are today's headlines mentioning unique wellness resets, TSA concerns, and more:

TSA lines are normal, for now. When you'll see the shutdown impact. - Zach Wichter |

The current partial government shutdown has not yet directly impacted travelers but reports say it could in the near future. There is an ongoing pause in the funding for homeland security which includes TSA. The longer the funding is paused the more likely agents are going to miss their first paycheck in March – Which can cause future staffing shortages.

Why Free Diving Is the Ultimate Wellness Reset - Dobrina Zhekova |

Freediving may be the next wellness trend for resorts. During the free dive wellness exercises swimmers will practice their "mammalian dive reflex" also referred as the "Master Switch of Life". This consists of the extension of breath holding. It has been shown to relax the mind and body while also slowing down the heart rate by an estimated 25%.
